IN THE CLAIMS

Cancel claim 1.

Add new claims 51-78 as follows:

- 51. A system for automatically producing an edited video program, comprising: one or more inputs for receiving video program source material containing program elements and supplemental information relating thereto, the supplemental information including:
  - a) correlated edit-time-code information, and
  - b) scripting, staging, or scene-composition information; recording apparatus for recording the video program source material and the supplemental information; and

- a video program generator operative to automatically produce the edited program by manipulating the program elements in accordance with the supplemental information.
- 52. The system of claim 51, wherein the supplemental information includes an edit-decision-list.
- 53. The system of claim 51, wherein the scripting, staging, or scene composition information relates to the control of camera positioning or orientation.
- 54. The system of claim 51, wherein the scripting, staging, or scene composition information relates to the positioning, orientation, or physical characteristics of props or actors.
- 55. The system of claim 51, wherein the content or use of the supplemental information are user-controllable.
- 56. The system of claim 51, wherein at least a portion of the supplemental information is received in a text file or formatted word processor file.

GIFFORD, KRASS, GROH, SPRINKLE, ANDERSON & CITKOWSKI, P.C.

- 57. The system of claim 51, wherein at least a portion of the supplemental information is reformatted to include specific commands.
- 58. The system of claim 57, wherein the specific commands include the time at which to switch camera coverage or camera angle.
- 59. The system of claim 57, wherein the specific commands relate to close-up camera coverage, or points at which specific visual special effects or sound effects should be incorporated.
  - 60. The system of claim 51, wherein the recording apparatus forms part of a camcorder.
- 61. The system of claim 51, wherein the supplemental information is stored separately from the program elements.
  - 62. The system of claim 51, wherein the program elements are stored on a videotape.
  - 63. The system of claim 51, wherein the supplemental information is searchable by a user.
- 64. The system of claim 51, wherein the program generator is operative to automatically assemble the program elements as stored or directly from the input for receiving the source material.
- 65. A method of producing an edited video program, comprising the steps of: receiving audio and video source material containing program elements; receiving supplemental program information relating to the source material, such information including:
  - a) correlated edit-time-code information, and
  - b) scripting, staging, or scene composition information; recording the source material in digitally compressed form; recording the supplemental program information in digital form; and automatically manipulating the program elements using the supplemental information to produce the edited video program.

- 66. The method of claim 65, wherein the supplemental information includes an editdecision-list.
- 67. The method of claim 65, wherein the scripting, staging, or scene composition information relates to the control of camera positioning or orientation.
- 68. The method of claim 65, wherein the scripting, staging, or scene composition information relates to the positioning, orientation, or physical characteristics of props or actors.
- 69. The method of claim 65, wherein the content or use of the supplemental information are user-controllable.
- 70. The method of claim 65, wherein at least a portion of the supplemental information is received in a text file or formatted word processor file.
- 71. The method of claim 65, wherein at least a portion of the supplemental information is reformatted to include specific commands.
- 72. The method of claim 71, wherein the specific commands include the time at which to switch camera coverage or camera angle.
- 73. The method of claim 71, wherein the specific commands relate to close-up camera coverage, or points at which specific visual special effects or sound effects should be incorporated.
  - 74. The method of claim 65, wherein the recording apparatus forms part of a camcorder.
